Federalist 51: A dependence on the people is, no doubt, the primary control on the government; but experience has taught mankind the necessity of auxiliary precautions.

INDEX, Revised: April 15, 2014

The necessary auxiliary precautions:

- The Chalk Box: Education. Jefferson taught us: "Any Nation that expects to be ignorant and free expects what never was and never will be". See
- The Soap Box: Freedom of the press and of speech, and of assembly and expression. Jefferson taught us: When the Press is Free: All is safe.
- The Jury box: putting the decisions of law and equity in the hands of the people. Jefferson taught us: the Jury is the only means by which a government can be held to the principles of its constitution.
- The Ballot Box: Selecting the Best People to effect government
- The Bullet box, when all else fails.
